

Abstract:

First and second welding wire containers are arranged adjacent one another. Each container is provided with a cover having a slot through which the welding wire can be withdrawn from the respective container. A spacer over the top of the slot divides the slot into an inner portion and an outer portion such that welding wire extending through the inner portion of the slot is held spaced from welding wire extending through the outer portion of the slot.